Job Description / Responsibilities / Requirements

Job Description:

The Global Export & Sanctions Compliance (GESC) team aligns with worldwide laws governing the exports of technology and products. The team architect creative and innovative solutions to solve compliance challenges at the company. As an integral part of the GESC team, the Sanctions Compliance Analyst will be responsible for a wide array of compliance activities including aligning with the Export Administration Regulation (EAR), International Traffic in Arms Regulations (ITAR), Office of Foreign Asset Control (OFAC), and foreign government agencies. This role will support the preparation of deemed export license applications and write compliance processes and procedures. In addition, the Sanctions Compliance Analyst will research and classify software, hardware, or 3rd party products, and submit classification requests to relevant government agencies, or applications for export licenses for controlled products or technologies, when necessary. Finally, this role will be expected to participate and contribute to the many other facets of responsibilities which the GESC team manages across the company.

Key Qualifications:

- Strong working knowledge of the Export Administration Regulations (category 3, 4, and 5), in particular semiconductors and Artificial Intelligence.
- Experience with deemed export review, and submission of IVLs.
- Experience with both h/w and s/w product, part and component classifications.
- Familiarity with international regulations is a plus.
- Excellent oral and written communication skills.
- Prefer 8+ years of general export compliance experience.
- Mac and OS X proficiency is a must.

Education:

- Bachelors degree in international business, international relations, international trade, law degree or a related degree or equivalent work experience.
